An Old Folksong

Australia's Official Marching Song Is Popular With British Troops

Just as Ireland, in the last World War, provided the locale of the most popular of the war songs of that period, "Tipperary," so Australia takes the turn in the present campaign and comes across with the old folksong, the chant of the Down Under soldier who wanders the vast distances between stations—rancha to you—wholly on foot, toting Matilda. Matilda, we had better be sure, before anybody gets false notions, is the Australian term for a blanket roll.

When an itinerant shepherd, clipper or farm worker announces to his companions that he is about to "Waitez Matilda," he must be about to hit the road—and so "Waitez Matilda" is a happy chant of the Australian downy. The word, as he swings along, sings of the "jam-buck," which is a sheep; of "tucker-bag," which is his food box; of his "bailie," which is his can for boiling tea.

"Waitez Matilda" has been the Aussie official marching song since the first landing in Egypt in February of 1940. Its swinging lilt has brought it popularity with all the British marching regiments where it has definitely displaced the song of the seven dwarfs in Walt Disney's animated picture of that name. —Chicago Sun.

SO YOU'RE GOING TO DO A PLAY?

The play is chosen and of course you have taken into consideration the talent at hand to work with and the size of stage and amount of stage equipment available. But you must see that enough copies of your hand so that all may have one copy. "Oh, we don't buy books . . . we just make our own copies of our parts and save money that way. We haven't very much you know, in these parts we know that the funds for the purchase of books is limited but copying parts or whole plays is an infringement of the copyright law and the penalty when caught, is quite severe.

Then you don't know whether it is really a good idea. It is not recommended to buy by some of the producers, but it is not in some other district, unless you look it up in the catalogue. All these plays are extremely important. The author and the publisher is the same person. The publisher is the one who has the right to put your play in the catalogue. All these plays are extremely important. The author and the publisher is the same person. The publisher is the one who has the right to put your play in the catalogue.

While you are waiting for the books to come from the publishers you may not have many things to do. The director to do that he or she will be almost dead. First check up and see how many days of stage technique your potential audience. Of course this one may be better, hence the extra care in checking the details the way directors who earn their living at this work do this.

Acting Is A Part Of Normal Life. We are all actors, and we pride ourselves on the success with which our daily deceptions delude people. The doctor cheers his sick patient when he feels another bit cheerful about the condition. The storekeeper boasts about property being just around the corner when he feels and looks far from prosperous. The lawyer encourages his client even when he feels they are going to lose the case. The tea hostess says very cheerful when she has a splitting headache. And Mother often lies to your Dad, by pretending she is actually going to bed and persuading him to go out with her to the neighbors to get away from it all.

For acting on the stage or screen is more deliberate, more planned and this can only be achieved by tireless effort on the part of the individual and the ability to take constructive criticism from the director and other members of the cast who sense that it is not just right. We can't all be George Arliss or Mary Pickford, but we all were born with a body, that can be taught to be a useful, a voice that can be trained to produce pleasant and interesting sounds, and emotions that can be aroused at a moment's notice like water from a tap. But it all takes a great deal of practice effort. However, the reward is well worth the effort, especially in these days of fast nerves. The theatre is the best escape mechanism I know of. WE FOUND OUT THAT ALL-BRAN IS REALLY THE "BETTER WAY"

Says Mr. A. H. Ward, Montreal, Quebec: "The use of harsh, irritating cathartics is a thing of the past in our house. When we found out about KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN, I was sure. I've made it a habit to use ALL-BRAN to my friends."

War In The Pacific

In a recent article, attention was drawn to the fact that the war in the Pacific would shut off, for a time at least, a part of the world from which we obtain a considerable quantity of much needed supplies. It is rather informative to learn that in a large area now involved in war with Japan is produced about ninety-one per cent. of the world's rubber. In British Malaya, where the Japs have been concentrating a considerable number of their fighting forces, there are large rubber plantations. Also in India, Burma and other British possessions. Some fifty-three per cent. of the world's supply comes from the Indies. The Japs have also been paying considerable attention to the Netherlands East Indies as well as to Indo-China and Thailand. From the Netherlands East Indies comes thirty-nine per cent. of the rubber and from Indo-China and Thailand some seven per cent. In these same areas are also to be found rich oil fields. British and American capital has been heavily invested in the development of these rich oil resources, and Dutch interests have also been a large factor.

Important Supply Source

It may not be generally known that some seventy-five per cent. of the world's supply of tin is mined in that section of southeastern Asia which the Japanese horde have set out to dominate. Sugar is also produced in large quantities in Hawaii as well as in the Philippines. For our cordage requirements, an important source of supply of jute and hemp has been India. Japanese air and naval activity may be expected to interfere with deliveries from India of this important product as well as wool and many other imports from Australia. Shipments of tea from Asia over the Pacific route will be naturally interfered with.

Would Look Elsewhere

The story of the establishment of rubber plantations in Sumatra, Java, Malaya, and other surrounding districts is a very interesting one. A few decades ago the Amazon valley was the sole source of crude rubber, and it is estimated that the rubber trees of the Amazon valley were cut down in the Brazilian jungles which could be utilized. The cultivation of rubber trees in British Malaya, effectively put an end to the tapping of wild rubber trees in Brazil, but as late as 1912 this country supplied 45,000 tons of crude rubber for the world's markets, as an emergency source it is believed that we could again look to Brazil for a portion of our requirements. All that is necessary is to provide a sufficient incentive to the natives to again begin tapping the wild rubber trees. Apparently the supply is unlimited, if it is found economically possible to overcome the difficulties in the way of procuring labor and transportation. It is estimated that a price of around 25 cents a pound would be sufficient to cover the cost. At the present time the price of crude rubber is somewhat less, but as present stocks dwindle and the scarcity increases, the price factor will have to give way to dire necessity.

Foreign Substances In Wool

Value Is Lowered

Wool on the Pacific coast is the cleanest of Canadian wool and is clean subjects to day.

In appealing to owners of sheep in the Dominion to be sure that fleeces are kept free of foreign matter which lowers their value. Agricultural Department officials said the spread of wool to the Pacific and consequent shipping difficulties might affect wool supplies normally obtained from the Antipodes.

Canadian wool production meets only a minor part of the Dominion's requirements, although in 1941 it was estimated at 10,000,000 pounds, is about 500,000 pounds greater than in 1940.

"We have a graphic example of the necessity for care in obtaining clean fleeces," one official said. "An Ontario farmer sheared his sheep in the shade of trees where the leaves were falling. The fact that some of these leaves mingled with the wool reduced his returns by $36."

The Individual Citizen's Army
A Weekly Column About The And That In The Canadian Army.
By Alan Maurice Irwin

Now here's a real question about the individual citizen's army—Why do we need to enlist reinforcements when we haven't yet done any fighting?"

The reason, believe it or not, is traceable to our bad habit in civilian life of not cutting in a doctor until most of the damage is done.

In civilian life if you have a stomach-ache you balance your discomfort against the $2.00 or $3.00 a physician's call would cost. If the ache disappears you forget all about it—if it persists you call in the doctor much later than you should have.

But in the Army—that's different! Medical attention is free and when you "fall in" that question is what seems like an ordinary stomach-ache may be an ulcer which caught early enough in civilian life is capable of control by special dietary arrangements such as, for instance, a glass of milk and a biscuit between breakfast and lunch, and a cup of tea in some town between lunch and dinner, with possibly the addition of a slight raid on the refrigerator before turning in.

In the army of this generation you can't arrange to call off an attack or the movement of big guns or the transfer of troops from one place to another while you have a glass of milk or a biscuit. Hence, therefore, men whose condition requires such treatment must be found jobs at the base or, if there is no room there, must return to civilian life where they will be perfectly capable of carrying on.

The stomach is only one phase—an important one if Napoleon's dictum that "an army marches on its stomach" was correct. But the Army, even though it is highly mechanized, none the less still marches on its feet. It marches with precision and this precision is not just to please a drill instructor—it is because it must have absolute control of a unit on the move.

You undoubtedly know of several cases where "flat feet" do not interfere in the slightest with the workday activities of locomotive engineers, even postmen and men in dozen other vocations. The reason is that within the limitations of their jobs they can choose their own time to go from here to there and largely control the length of time they can take to do it. Put one of those men in the Army where he must be prepared to move with his unit at a moment's notice, to stay with that unit come what may and the disability in civilian life poses another problem for the Medical Officer.

Until I penned the Director-General of Medical Services for the answer to the question, "Why do we need reinforcements when we haven't any fighting?" I was inclined to chuckle with glee at the patriotic volunteer who put one over on the Medical Board and got into the Army despite a defect that he knew was there. I have changed my tune now that I look at it from the point of view of the taxpayer who pays that man his $130 a day. I have no doubt that nothing but patriotism underlies the desire to outdo the Medical Board, but when finally the defect so skillfully covered up becomes apparent the mistaken patriot has cost his fellow taxpayers hundreds of dollars and is himself unable to do his high duty of fighting for his country.

He is another of the reasons why the individual citizen's army needs reinforcements while there is no fighting.

The plywood industry of Canada has undergone tremendous expansion to meet wartime needs, particularly for plywood needed in aircraft manufacture.

Alberta regional war labor personnel was announced by Hon. E. C. Manning, minister of trade and industry. Under federal war time wages and cost-of-living orders "It is provided that each provincial minister having jurisdiction over labor matters shall have the board. Thus Mr. Manning is chairman, W. D. First signs of highway activity in the current year were evident in calls for tenders involving graveling operations over about 127 miles, with excavating, stock piling and crushing. Locations of projects are given as Edmonton to Chipman county; Redwood to Suffield; Suffield to Brooks and Suffield west.

to 47 the number of such co-operative self-help bodies organized since passage of the Credit Union Act in 1938. The new unions are composed of Calgary fire fighters and rural groups at St. Vincent and Goodridge, in the St. Paul district. By systematic savings of small sums, Alberta's 4,500 credit unions have now passed the $150,000 mark in savings, and these savings have been issued to members for provident purposes to a total of $207,467. Organization of the two rural credit unions is a source of gratification, since such bodies have been found to be of great importance throughout the United States and Eastern Canada, where the movement has grown to great prominence. It is asserted that in rural communities,

Word was received by J. Heston of Stobart of the death of Donald Walker on the Pacific Coast. Many old timers of the district will remember Mr. Walker as he farmed for years between Gleichen and Stobart. Before coming to the district Mr. Walker farmed for some time at Dominion City Manitoba and coming to ties, where the need for a source of credit rises more frequently than in urban centres, the well organized credit union has permitted farmers to carry out many profitable operations which formerly would have had to be abandoned.

Declaring that the party political system is a menace to a democratic way of life, Premier Abernethy issued a statement in which he reiterated the assertion that the Democratic Monetary Reform Organization of which he is the leader if definitely not a political party, but is a co-ordinating body for purposes of national action on national issues. The D.M.R.O. was organized at an all-Canada conference held in Winnipeg last fall. The proventor of the party politics is an instrument of frustration which divides the people on minor issues while major issues are neglected. His claimed parties are subject to domination by vested interests.

Coal production in Alberta continues to make gains, according to figures released by A. A. Miller, chief inspector of mines for the province. For 11 months ended November 30, total production was 6,255,094 tons, an increase of 75,247 tons over the previous year's figures. The increase is considered gratifying by those interested in the mining industry. Stems falling off in domestic coal production was noted during November, but increases were recorded in sub-bituminous varieties.

Stobart about the year 1900 farmed there for almost 30 years before leaving and moving to the coast. The family is noted for their longevity. Donald's mother died a few years ago after reaching the 100 mark and as far as it is known his brother Jim survives in hale and hearty and the oldest in the family.

During the past week the Gleichen Junior Hockey Team played a couple of games—one at Calgary and the other at Arrowwood and won both games. This is all the more remarkable when it is known that the boys have had no practice whatever this winter owing to there being no ice at the rink.

M. Murray paid a visit to Calgary recently to see his old friend Mark Lyle, who for sometime past has been living at Victoria and was in Calgary on business trip also to see his father who is now over 81 years of age. It is some 20 years since Mr. Lyle left Arrowwood and located in Calgary to enter the real estate business. Lyle, who the coast climate he moved to Victoria a few years ago and resumed the same business there. According to Mr. Murray Mark is doing a splendid business having offices in a large downtown building. He has quite a sales staff and meets many people from the prairie provinces who are in search of homes.

Alberta license plates will be available one month earlier this year. It is announced by the provincial secretary's department. There is no change in the license year. Object of the early issue is to enable motorists to obtain gasoline under the rationing system which becomes operative April 1. Without a license, no gasoline will be obtainable.

THE WORLD OF WHEAT

An authoritative agricultural organization in Alberta, that has the respect of all, has recommended to the Dominion Minister of Agriculture that the license for Golden Ball Durum wheat shall be revoked. If this is done it means that no one would be permitted to advertise, or to offer for sale, or to sell, or to have in their possession for sale, for the purpose of seeding in Canada, any Golden Ball Durum wheat. This is, in turn, of course, would quickly eliminate the variety from production and use.

Golden Ball is a low quality Durum wheat, and makes the poorest kind of macaroni. It seems important, therefore, that this variety should be eliminated as quickly as possible, for it harms the general quality and reputation of all the good Durum wheat that Canada produces for sale on world markets. Under recent regulations Golden Ball Durum is allowed by the Dominion Grain Inspection Department only to go into the lower grades. There are other varieties of Durum that are of far better quality than Golden Ball and which yield as high.

I have seen the poor quality macaroni that Golden Ball Durum makes, and so I strongly advise farmers to support the recommendation to the minister made by the Alberta authority.
